Policy:

The College of New Caledonia encourages, supports, and offers health and wellness-related programs and standards to assist students and employees in achieving their goals for physical, mental, spiritual and emotional well-being. The College believes that students and employees who are emotionally, spiritually and physically healthy are better able to achieve the goals of education and life.

As a community-based public institution, the College recognizes that many individuals and groups who are not students or employees access CNC services and facilities. The various standards and procedures developed under this policy are applicable to the general public accessing the College, with the exception of limited opportunities such as the Employee Family Assistance Plan and CNC-specific workshops.
